Humble Pie creator and guitarist Paul Simon has died, and the band has released a statement online as well as putting out a press release that promises a full reissue of My Favorite Things, on April 22nd. It's one of a series of bands including the Smiths, The Mollusk, Korn and others, that Simon was rumored to be working on for a forthcoming studio album.. He Loves Blues & Soul: One of the defining elements of Simon's songwriting style is his love for the blues. Whether composing songs like "Dope's" with his longtime partner Chris Martin, or writing songs like "Bubbling Up Out In the Sun" with The Dap-Kings frontman John Butler Tripp, Simon loves working with an incredible band of talented artists who never seem to compromise vision or vision alone.. He Loves R&B: Paul Simon is one of The Smiths' founding members; after their founding drummer Tim Smith, they were a quintessential black rock/R&B ensemble that never gave you reason to doubt their musical abilities beyond their undeniable talent. In addition, Simon brought with him one of the most remarkable songs to ever grace The Smiths: "Shake On Something" is arguably the best-selling song of all time, and has become an anthem for the band's influence. In 2012, Paul Simon even sang the song on TV's Keeping Up with the Kardashians and "I Wish You A Merry Xmas"..
